Film Beauty To Wed

Engagement of Carmel Myers to Ralph H. Blum, Los Angeles Attorney, To Be Announced Sunday; Marriage in June

CARMEL MYERS

NEW YORK, May 1—Carmel Myers, once described as the most beautiful Jewish girl on the screen by David Wark Griffith, and who played her first movie role in his 'Intolerance,' is to marry Ralph H. Blum, Los Angeles attorney early in June

The formal announcement of their engagement will be made Sunday at the Long Island Manor home in Scarsdale, Westchester county, where Miss Myers is a visitor at the home of Mrs. Irving Berlin, wife of the song writer.

Carmel's father and Carmel's father the late Rabbi Myers, were friends of many years standing. Carmel's father played a big part in romance and in her screen career

It was when Daniel Wark Griffith, who went to consult Rabbi Myers in connection with Rebekah history, that he saw Carmel, then a high school girl. Mr. Griffith persuaded her father to let her become a motion picture actress.

Her career has been intensely interesting. Metro Goldwyn Mayer signed her to play young roles in her early days with the company, and she was featured in the silent version of "Ben Hur," which became a big success.

It was not until she sang in a First National talkie that she came into real prominence and she will continue her work in the talkies after her marriage.

least has a wife who can pass other of these tests.

One of Marion's women prominent in federated clubs was mistaken for Mrs. Caroline Lindbergh, after the mother of the famous flier had addressed the state federation convention at Dayton on "Dayton Night," the reception of the city to the federated club women, last week.

Several times she has been referred to as Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Although our women may not be in the line of succession, we at least have a "double" who can cause a furor wherever she goes.

Walking Difficult

RESERVE a share of your sympathy for the man who is trying to walk for the benefit of his health. He finds it an exceedingly difficult task in this city when about nine out of ten persons are automobile owners and who use these conveyances even for trips that are not more than a block in length.

Walking, physicians say, is one of the most beneficial forms of exercise and it ought to be more so when much of our time has to be spent in the automobile endeavor to pass safely through traffic at street intersections.

There are a number of Marion business men, some of whom live a mile or more from their stores and offices, who are seeking to build up their health and prolong life by returning to the diminishing ranks of pedestrians. Leaving their cars at home, they turn out their chests and start for town in the morning intent upon stealing every possible bit of exercise that can be forced into their respiratory system.

Now and then they manage to carry out their plans without being molested. More often, however, they have not progressed more than a few hundred feet from home before a friendly motorist steps and offers a lift. A few are determined enough to decline the invitation with the announcement that they "prefer to walk."

That's a hard thing to do without giving offense, as in most instances the invitation is one of the nice things that occurs happiness in the weekly grind of the machine and completes the trip in confusion.

Neat Garbage Cans

A NEAT and time-saving device has been discovered by several Marion families for disposal of refuse, commonly known as garbage.

Instead of burning the newspapers for a few days, save them up and the next time the garbage can is cleaned out and washed, line it with four or five thicknesses of paper. When it comes time to dump the refuse, it is held in in this tube of paper and is easily slipped from the can, leaving it a great deal cleaner than former emptyings did.

"THE more the merrier," certainly applies to jewelry. Rings, beads, and bracelets are piled on top of one another for feminine adornment. The only rings to which this is applicable are the wedding ring type of little finger rings. Six are worn, each different. Diamonds, rubys, emeralds, sapphires, pearls, silver, platinum or gold links may be used for these six little finger rings. Speaking of wedding rings—have you seen the square ones—supposed to fit better than the traditional wedding circlet? And it is quite proper to wear chokers of different stones or metal together. And the latest in beads are tiny balls of cotton with a bit of brightly colored paint stuck on them and strung together. Of course the new wooden sport beads mustn't be forgotten.

Prohibition Will Be Definite Issue In British Election

TIMES FOR FIRST TIME IN 37 YEARS

All Temperance Parties United for May 30 Balloting; Policy Is Simple

THREE-POINT PROGRAM

Candidates Quizzed on Their Views on Public Control of Liquor

LONDON, May 1—For the first time in 37 years prohibition will be a definite issue in the British general election on May 30.

Not since 1892, when "local veto" became an active interest in politics, and nearly caused the defeat of William Ewart Gladstone and the liberal party, has this sharply cut issue occurred.

On this occasion, for the first time, all temperance parties are united. Their policy is a simple one. They will concentrate on divisions which are held by a small or medium majority. Their pledged voters, irrespective of party allegiance, will then vote solidly for the candidate favorable to their cause.

Three-Point Program

This election campaign is being run by what is known as "the active service movement." This movement, instituted and backed mainly by the free churches of Britain, and manned almost entirely by the "new voters," —those young men and women who have just turned 21 and who have never voted before—will present a "three-point program" to every candidate. Each will be asked:

"(1) If elected will you support a measure to secure public control of the supply of intoxicating liquor to clubs by means of an annual permit or license?

"(2) Will you support a local option measure for England and Wales, including an option of 'no licenses'?

"(3) Will you support a measure for the Sunday closing of liquor bars?"

Questionnaire Out

This questionnaire was sent to the heads of the three political parties in Britain and their general attitude can be judged by the replies before I from them.

Premier Stanley Baldwin instructed his secretary to reply:

"The conservative party has always regarded individual liberty as one of the most valuable assets of the English character...much as we desire to see the evils connected with the intemperate use of alcohol disappear, we believe that such a result can not be brought about by the proposals which are put forward in your memorial without grave disadvantage."

Welcomes Interest

J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, in a very friendly, personal letter, said:

"I welcome with all my heart the interest which the signatories show in the temperance movement. Last autumn the labor party declared for a royal commission to inquire into the whole problem. The commission would be appointed immediately if a labor government were in power."

Sir Herbert Samuel, replying on behalf of the Liberal party, said:

"Our attitude is that the present national drink bill represents an unproductive and wasteful expenditure by the community which is indefensible in the existing economic situation, and inimical to the health and efficiency of many of the consumers. ...It is necessary that the system whereby the sale and distribution of alcohol is regulated, should be revised and improved."

The net result of the replies is that the labor and liberal parties are prepared to legislate on the question of, at any rate, a modified form of prohibition, but the conservative party will remain conservative.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS PARLEY TO ADJOURN

Will Quit To Study American Navy Limitation Proposals

GENEVA, May 1—The League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission, which has been discussing all phases of the disarmament problem, will adjourn on Saturday to give the various governments time to study the American proposals for limitation of navies, it was officially announced this afternoon. The commission will reassemble before September after the military and naval experts of the different governments have had an opportunity to make a rapid examination of the American suggestions.

M. Politis, the Greek delegate, said that the commission has completed its technical discussion and effectives. He added that, in as much as the government's comments "need time to ripen" the naval aspect," it had been decided to adjourn at the end of this week.

It has been developed that not only graft, pay-roll padding, whoopee parties, junketing parties and other illegal uses of public funds figure in the Chicago sanitary district scandal, but forgery as well. It probably may be safely said that the Chicago sanitary district is about the most unsanitary morally of any extant; that it smells to high heaven.

The Van Deinse Resignation.

The announcement of A. F. Van Deinse that, owing to the condition of his health, he had tendered his resignation as president and general manager of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric company, to become effective July 1, was received with genuine regret throughout the city. Since his advent here, eleven years ago, he has won the esteem and respect of the people of the community generally as a doer of things, and those who have learned to know him intimately have given him their sincere liking.

To us, the characteristic in Mr. Van Deinse which has the greatest appeal is his straightforwardness when approached with any kind of a proposition. No difficulty is experienced in finding where he stands. If it is a matter connected with the business of his company, he is either for it or against it. If he can not see his way to meeting it, he will frankly say so. For an executive of this make-up, it being understood that he possesses a thorough knowledge of the business he heads, we have the highest admiration.

Mr. Van Deinse has made a splendid record in developing the enterprise from which he is shortly to retire. The story of its remarkable growth was given at some length in our news columns Tuesday, and we will not go into it in detail again. It is enough to say here that the big and splendidly-equipped power plant at Scioto, the new station on west Center street and the improvement in the road bed and the rolling-stock, including the exceptionally fine chair cars, are accomplishments of his administration, which has seen the company's patrons grow from 2,200 to an aggregate of 12,000 and its electric output increase from 2,400 to 13,000 kilowatts. There is ground for pride in such accomplishments as these.

Regardless of the fact that Mr. Van Deinse's duties will fall to capable hands, William P. Moloney, general counsel of the company, having been elected to succeed him as president, and L. C. Stang, having been chosen vice president and general manager to become active director of the business and operation of the interurban property and its electric power service, it is with deep regret that we contemplate the severance of his relations with the Electric company.

Divorce and Gold-Digging.

Superior Judge William N. Gemmill, of Chicago, holds that the very common practice of women drawing alimony from their first husbands after their remarriage to other men is highly immoral, and he has expressed the hope that the matter be carried to the highest judicial authority to which submission is possible that a definite ruling may be had on this phase of the divorce problem which so frequently fronts the court.

The matter came before Judge Gemmill, last week, when a divorced husband asked that he be relieved from paying the woman who had divorced him $25 a week alimony, stating that he had remarried and found the payment of $1,300 a year alimony a serious draft on his income. It was established that the complainant's former wife was making $25 a week and her husband twice that sum.

The former wife, however, was obdurate, insisting upon the payment of her financial "pound of flesh." She said another court had ordered him to pay her the alimony, that it was rightfully hers and that she wanted it.

"I can not understand how you can expect your first husband, with whom you refused to live and whom you divorced, to continue to support you," Judge Gemmill said. "And I can not understand why you will take his money. How can you and your present husband live happily with the knowledge that you own at least a portion of your maintenance to your first husband?"

The woman refused to be moved by the court's remarks, and her attorney intimated that he would carry the matter up in the event of a decision unfavorable to his client.

"Excellent," came back the judge. "The question is one which should be decided by a court decision. It is now merely a rule of law that it is not good public policy to require a man to support a woman after she has remarried. It is general opinion that she has the right to select whether she shall rely on her former husband for support or obtain support by another marriage. It is a question on which we should have a supreme court ruling for guidance." And to bring about a decision from the state's highest tribunal, and at the same time relieve the appellant of the burden of the weekly payment, he granted his appeal.

And why is not the course followed by this Chicago judge the just and proper one? Why should the courts be parties to the gold-digging of divorced women? It's a notorious fact that many women marry for no other purpose than the securing of alimony. There have been cases known, and probably there are such cases now, where women draw alimony from two former husbands. Cases have been reported where they have drawn from three or four and one case has been brought to light where a woman was living in comparative luxury on alimony drawn from five.

There are many cases in which alimony is a matter of right and justice, but it can not be in such cases as herein cited. Such gold-digging is impossible to self-respecting women, and the courts do well to frown on it when attempted by any other kind.

A New Orleans man set his office afire, took poison and then shot himself. Persistence such as that was worthy of a better fate.

While the purpose of General Dawes in going to San Domingo was to do a little budget-making, it seems that he took long enough time off to formulate a real, good, stiff wallop for Controller General McCarl of the United States. Of course, he could have hit the controller general harder, but being a man of gentle mood, Mr. Dawes naturally was adverse to the use of a club.

Twenty gallons of corn whisky, which was found to be oozing through the tin cans in which it was stored in the United States marshal's office over in Steubenville, was ordered destroyed by Federal Judge Denson W. A Paris cable says the experts of the Allies believe that Germany will make a new reparations offer, raising her offer somewhat nearer to the minimum set by them, not so much to bring about a settlement for the sake of settling the matter as to overcome the wobbling of the mark, which has been acting up of late. When it comes down to the final negotiations in such matters, the necessity for holding down the bank discount rate cuts a mighty important figure.

Of the ten designs for the lighthouse monument to Columbus to be erected in Santo Domingo, three were those of Americans, each of whom was awarded a $2,000 prize, while four other Americans won smaller awards. The bill for one Chicago sanitary district "party," last year, is disclosed to have been $2,475, one item being $102 for "drugs." One hundred and two dollars couldn't have purchased much liquid delight at the then prevailing bootleg prices up in Chicago.

A New York City show girl has begun a $250,000 breach-of-promise proceeding against a Denver oil man, who, instead of marrying her, married an almost penniless Denver widow two days after he received word that he had been granted a Mexican divorce. We do not wish to prejudice the case by suggestion, but isn't a contract like that alleged by the show girl liable to be held to be against public policy?

"RIDE HIM, COWBOY!"

Children's Welfare.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Once in a while congress turns aside from its ordinary performances and devotes a few minutes to the discussion of matters having to do with the health of the people. When in one of these happy moods it passed the following resolution:

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that the president of the United States is hereby authorized and requested to issue annually a proclamation setting apart May 1 of each year as "Child Health" day and inviting all agencies and organizations interested in child welfare to unite upon that day in the observance of such exercises as will awaken the people of the nation to the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the nation's children."

By authority of this act of congress, the president proclaimed "Child Health" day this year May day, which has always been given to the children, will this year and each year following be observed as "National Play" day. Recreation and playground associations and all lovers of children have applied their every effort to make "Child Health" day this year the best celebration of the sort we have ever had.

President Hoover has always been interested in the children.

He is really the founder of the practice of devoting a day each year to the welfare of the youngsters. If I remember correctly, he is the author of what we call "The Child's Bill of Rights." Just as Mr. Jefferson is the author of the "Political Bill of Rights," the present president proposed a national standard for the protection of child life. We shall be happy when there shall be no child in America:

"That has not been born under proper conditions.

"That does not live in hygienic surroundings.

"That ever suffers from undernourishment.

"That does not have prompt and efficient medical attention and inspection.

"That does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and good health.

"That has not the complete birthright of a sound mind in a sound body.

"That has not the encouragement to express in fullest measure the spirit within which is the final endowment of every human being."

"I have never failed to be thankful that I was born in the country. There we find open spaces and room for the many activities so dear to the child's heart. In the city there is a real problem when it comes to recreation and play. Apartment houses and great hotels take all the space that might be given over to ball fields and playgrounds. But there are children problems everywhere and they must be solved.

In every sense the child is the cornerstone of the nation. Unless we can guarantee to our children that the bill of rights shall be something more than a proclamation, we have not gone far in solving the problem of the future.

To my mind, good health is fundamental to spirituality, to education, to prosperity, to good citizenship, and to the welfare of the nation. Whatever we can do on "Child Health" day to awaken an interest in the physical welfare of the children, will mean that we have done our part to lay broad and deep the foundations of America.

Editorial Opinion.

RESPONSE TO NAVAL REDUCTION PLAN.

The statement of Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, in the house of commons Wednesday that "it is in the same spirit and with the most earnest wish to reach a complete agreement" that the British government will consider the American proposals for naval reduction is most friendly and encouraging. It was immediately criticised as indefinite by the parliamentary advocates of naval reduction; but thus far there is nothing for us to complain of in the British attitude. The real test will come after the proposals of Ambassador Gibson at Geneva have been reduced by him to a written formula which will then call for study and reply by the other naval powers. Basically the crux for the British will lie in a decision to abandon the admiralty theory that the requirements of naval power are absolute, not relative. Twice in the past few years the admiralty forces have smashed naval reduction plans, once when the MacDonald government attempted curtailment and later when a compromise was in sight at Geneva. But that is past. The present question is whether the force of British public opinion, which is emphatically favorable to the American proposals, will compel a negotiation in the spirit that Sir Austen Chamberlain suggests. The Japanese, as at Geneva, have shown an admirable disposition to cooperate with the American plan.

The rumbling of Mussolini for Italian recognition must not be taken too seriously at this time. The Italian-French naval race is a grave problem of itself and involves the fact that France must have naval defenses not only in the Mediterranean, but in the Atlantic as well. The Italian demand for parity, therefore, would actually place the French at a disadvantage, unless they had a naval alliance with Great Britain. Mussolini can not go too far in his disturbance of peace manoeuvers, or he might disrupt the delicate balance which has held his government in British favor of recent years. It should not be forgotten, however, that the Italian attitude is generally to depreciate both the Kellogg peace pact and the proposals for reduction of land and naval armaments, and to cast suspicion upon the American motives. The reason lies in the conflict of such programs with the imperial policies of expansion proclaimed by the Fascist government.

Ranting for home consumption is far easier, however, than taking the burden, before the people of the world, of opposing or defeating in sincere effort at armament reduction. Public sentiment in Europe undoubtedly will be insistent upon the breaking of this deadlock.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT AT THIRTY.

Heavy is the burden of proof thrown on the young shoulders of Robert M. Hutchins! All the generality of human life and affairs runs dead against him. Upon the established law of averages, no one can possibly contend that there is evident wisdom in naming a man, barely turned thirty years of age, to be president of one of the nation's largest universities. It simply is not true that men of such youth ordinarily have acquired anything like the knowledge, experience and balance of judgment necessary for the leadership of a great modern university.

And yet the trustees of the University of Chicago may have made a decision which will prove to be one of the best that a college board ever made. It all depends upon Robert M. Hutchins, and upon the issue whether it be true that his capacities are really so exceptional that they entitle him to be judged not by the funded standards of history, but in the light of history's exceptions. Charles W. Eliot was but thirty-five years of age when he became president of Harvard university. Between thirty and thirty-five no one would contend that there lies any very broad gulf of difference. Or, if some one should so contend, there need only be cited the case of William Pitt who became chancellor of the exchequer before he had reached twenty-three and prime minister of England soon after he had passed twenty-four. In the United States Henry Clay was appointed to serve an unexpired term in the senate before he was thirty, and at thirty-four he was elected speaker of the house of representatives.

The thing can be done, and done well. Robert M. Hutchins, in any case, gives unquestionable evidence that he is a man of notable worth and ability. Unless this were so, he could not have served, while still in his twenties, as dean of the Law school of Yale university, and served there impressively well. The issue whether he be indeed of such full-fledged strength and of such altogether exceptional endowment that he can continuously bear the weight of responsibilities and duties normally beyond his years, is for President Hutchins, and the future, to determine and make manifest as times goes on. If he prove indeed another Charles W. Eliot, Boston will be the first to accord him grateful acclaim. — Boston Transcript.

Upward Bound.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 1—Another philandering romance, blooming under Broadway luminations, reached a spectacular finish recently. The Romeo was a rich and apparently happily married patron of the theater. The Juliet was a lovely young girl he had met on various evenings away from the family hearth.

His interest in her became extraordinary. That is, she called him "Uncle." From the obscurity of a cellar cabaret she was sent off to a finishing school for a polishing, and this was followed by a careful vocal training under celebrated masters in Europe.

A naturally pleasant voice developed a richness, and following intense study in a dramatic school she was "farm'd out" to stock companies for further development. She came back to Broadway and took a place in a chorus, having worked earnestly and faithfully.

So when the time was ripe for a debut the "uncle" appeared in the role of the generous angel and provided extravagantly for her appearance in the leading role of a musical comedy. During this seasoning process sly whispers of the attachments filtered to the columns of gossip weeklies.

He cautioned her to be extremely discreet. Any knowledge of their relations would be not only disastrous to him, but to her career. He loved his wife, you know, but was one of those misunderstood husbands. She shook her bobbed head in perfect understanding and meant it. His was the decorum and austerity moulded by tradition.

On the night of her appearance in her first featured part, a brilliant audience gathered at one of the select playhouses. The lady filled the promising predictions made for her, and so captivated her audience that at the end of the first act enthusiasm became riotous.

She went before the curtain, made a well-chosen speech, and was called back for a total of twelve bows. In her triumph she turned her robinbright eyes to her "Uncle" who sat with his wife in a stage box and blew him an appreciative kiss. The audience craned to see a face gone suddenly white. He never spoke to her again.

Hat manufacturers are catching at their thumbs at the spread of the hatless fad. Many, pessimistically inclined, believe the hat will go the way of the bicycle. The records show the first man to roam Broadway hatless was Earle Carroll. He was advised to do this as a remedy for baldness, and followed the prescription for several seasons, but, continuing to lose his hair, dropped the notion. Many go hatless as a symbol of quasi-Bohemianism, others to be rid of hat checking annoyance, but the huge majority to show off.

One of the biggest art collectors is John Ringling, the circus man. At every auction he sits inconspicuously in the background, thumbing a catalogue and little interested until the treasure he seeks comes up. Among his most recent purchases was the bathtub in which Marat was lolling when stabbed by Charlotte Corday. He paid $400 for the relic, which was a part of the Napoleonic collection of the late Rodman Wanamaker. Mr. Ringling, by the way, has one of the five biggest individual fortunes in the world.

Save Your Gas.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

How would an association for prevention of the waste of gasoline do? If you have noticed that there is much waste of that kind, open your eyes and look about a little when you are in a place where automobiles stand waiting. "Idling engines" are no uncommon sight. There are altogether too many drivers who let the gas blow while they stop to talk, and often the power thus thrown away through thoughtlessness, carelessness or laziness, would have driven the machine a mile or more. It would be interesting and perhaps startling to ascertain by actual observation how much gas is consumed needlessly as a consequence of the delays caused by city traffic laws. Some drivers are too eager to get the jump the instant the signal changes and so they keep their engines spraying away the precious oil as if it were as unlimited as air.

There has been lately some bad advice given about spending as a more promising road to success than saving.

Fallacies like that have a fatal attraction for many minds.

They spread like weeds and give rise to blind recklessness, which makes itself felt on all sides by encouraging the almost criminal waste of basic materials which any one may see going on around him.

There is no need of pessimism concerning the supply of gasoline; no doubt we shall have enough for a long time to come, if we use it with reasonable economy. But, Professor R. B. Smith, of Colgate university, says:

"No matter how many more fields we discover, how deep we dig our wells, there must be a limit somewhere; and yet there seems to be no limit to the number of automobiles we can build and sell. The curve of production of gasoline from native sources is sure to fall while that of motor cars is rising."

But there is another waste of a different origin, depending not on reckless use of gasoline, but on the need of greater efficiency in the engines. How much could be saved in this way is at present simply a speculative question. Whether inventors and constructors are seriously studying the problem, with a determination to put it through to a favorable solution, is another speculative question. Some one, according to Professor Smith, has made a calculation, which he does not guarantee to be correct, that we are getting only about four per cent. of efficiency out of our automotive engines, and he remarks that "the steam engineer and the electrical engineer, the chemical manufacturer, etc., would feel that a four per cent. yield on any process was pretty small."

Writing in the Scientific Monthly, he makes various suggestions as to improvement in carburetors, weight of cars, etc., but he points out some other things that the majority of people probably have never thought of. For instance, he asserts that we are wasting large quantities of petroleum in city gas plants. It appears that after the now common "water-gas process" of manufacturing gas for city uses was adopted laws were passed requiring the makers to mix with their product a certain amount of oil gas made by destructive distillation of petroleum. The purpose was to insure illuminative power. But, now that this gas is almost never employed for lighting, but almost entirely for heating and industrial uses, Professor Smith thinks the legislation which is the cause of the waste spoken of should be repealed.

Another thing he points out is that "the running of trains and ships with crude petroleum may be convenient and cleanly, but it is wasteful, as we have other means of propulsion that are about as good. The development of the steam turbine for the sea, the increasing use of electricity for the shop and for land traction, would seem to make it entirely unnecessary to use petroleum either for traction or in the factory. It would seem far better to save this for cars and trucks."

He also considers the heating of houses with petroleum as an unnecessary waste. These are things for the practical man to think about. Certainly no man wants to consider giving up his car for lack of fuel to run it. — Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The taste for luxury on the part of the American citizen has been growing at a marvellous rate. Since the outbreak of the World war our consumption of cigarets, candy, perfumes and automobiles has doubled and in some instances quadrupled. Also we read more newspapers and magazines than ever before, and college enrollments are three times as great as they used to be. And in 1927 more than $300,000,000 worth of ice-cream was eaten.

Just how much do luxuries mean to us? Are they essential to our happiness or are they just a habit?

A curious thing about us all is that we do not learn much by experience. Experience, says this same Shaw, has little to do in influencing our action. We are much more moved by our expectations. We are always looking for something and we do all sorts of queer things in the hope of finding it.

It was Hegel, German philosopher, who said that the only thing man learns by experience is that man does not learn anything by experience.

WOMAN WRITER FINDS HEALTH ON DOORSTEP

Vincennes, Indiana—Down the centuries the cry—"The King is dead; long live the King"—has come to us as the ringing call of the unbroken reign of royalty. In this democratic day and age it has a strange sound. But Miss Maude Moran, 1306 Vigo Street, poet and composer, has had occasion to use it in a very fitting manner—the change of an old habit for a new. She tells about it below:

"From childhood, I have been a slave to that domineering tyrant, King Caffein. When other children asked for milk or candy I demanded caffein. The habit, thus formed, grew stronger every passing year and increasingly greater quantities were required to satisfy me.

Keyed to high pitch

"I am a composer of music and writer of verse, which is usually written to order. I used the brain-stimulating effect of caffein to keep me pitched to the highest key of mental activity. Of course, I had to pay the price of such immoderate indulgence. Nervousness and insomnia caused spiritual depression and my poems and melodies took on a melancholy tone which detracted much from their salable qualities. Sometimes, I worked on into the wee sma' hours of the morning because I dreaded going to bed, knowing that I would be unable to sleep.

"Thinking my brain work was the cause of my sleeplessness, I never once blamed caffein until a small sample of Postum was left at my door. I prepared the sample according to directions and, it tasted so good, I purchased a large sized package the next day. I continued using Postum instead of caffein and soon my nerves were in fine shape and I could sleep, for which I am devoutly thankful.

"The result is: Old King Caffein has been dethroned and young King Postum reigns in his stead and I am one of his most loyal and devoted subjects."

Take your own case!

Probably, like Miss Moran, you have blamed overwork as the cause of your sleeplessness or nervousness. You have never thought to look into your diet—to suspect that the seemingly harmless caffein you take with your meals could be the source of jangly nerves and sleepless nights.

Try this test—then decide! Make Postum your mealtime drink for thirty days, in place of caffein. See what a difference it makes—in the way you sleep, in the way you feel. Then you'll realize the true danger of caffein—and the true value of Postum!

You'll miss nothing in mealtime enjoyment by the change. Millions prefer Postum's rich flavor to that of any other mealtime drink.

Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran. A drink without a trace of any artificial stimulant. Nothing to attack nerves and heart, to cause sleeplessness or indigestion.

Your grocer has Postum in two forms—Instant Postum, prepared instantly in the cup, and Postum Cereal, made by boiling. Both cost much less than other mealtime drinks—only one-half cent a cup. Order today—start your 30-day test!

If I Were A Man | If I Were A Girl

I WOULDN'T force my attentions on my stenographer.

I wouldn't call her "sweetheart" and "dearie," and expect her to stand for honeyed words and casual mauling. If she met my advances halfway, that'd be something else again. But if she showed me plainly that she didn't care for personalities and wasn't looking for a sugar daddy, I'd stop annoying her.

I wouldn't bring her gifts and try to date her up for dinner. I wouldn't insist upon sitting uncomfortably close while I was dictating, or putting my arm around her as I leaned above her desk.

I wouldn't keep her late after hours and start making violent love to her the minute we were alone. It's taking an unfair advantage of the girl, for she can't tell the boss what she really thinks of him unless she wants to be without a job.

I'd keep my relations with my stenographer businesslike—and pick my sugar babies outside the office.

I WOULDN'T be too generous with my kisses.

It's trite, but it's true, nevertheless, that a man never values what he can obtain too cheaply—and that applies to kisses, as well as to anything else in life. A man appreciates what he has to work for, whether it's a car, a motorboat or a kiss.

The girl who makes the boy friends exert themselves a little to win her kisses is a whole lot more desirable in the eyes of a man than the red hot mamma who is right on the job with puckered lips all set and waiting.

A man likes to feel that a kiss is a favor bestowed especially upon him—a tribute to his attractiveness and masculine virility. We want the privilege of the chase and the thrill of landing the quarry. The girl who gives her favors too easily makes a big mistake.

It's the wise girl who errs on the side of restraint.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

The "Perennial Bachelor"

A GOOD husband is the noblest work of woman. But bachelors, like poets, are born and not made.

If a man lives and dies with his bachelor's buttons on, it is not because he never intended to marry, but because Nature never intended him to marry. NO man ever marries intentionally!

When a man escapes the noose, up to forty, it is not because he is filled with caution and cynicism, but because he is filled with the care-free spirit of Pan—which never can be caught and tamed by any woman.

It is not because he never loved one woman a lot—but because he loved so many women a little.

It is not because "the right woman never came his way"; but because when she did he was always "on his way" to call on the wrong woman.

Not because he dreaded the storms and struggles of married life—but because he dreaded the "dead calm" of domesticity.

Not because he waited too long for the Ideal Love—but because he began looking for it too early—and too often.

Not because he never met the kind of woman he could live with—but because he never met a woman he could not live without.

Not because no woman ever tried to get him—but because so many women tried to get him, that it spoiled all the joy of the love chase.

Not because he never had an impulse to tie himself to a woman for life—but because he never had the heart to disentangle himself from all the other women in his life.

That is what keeps a man a bachelor—not his inability to fall in love, but his marvelous agility in catching his balance and crawling out of it—just in time!

Marriage is a matter of chance or choice; but permanent bachelorhood requires skill, luck, dexterity, eternal vigilance—and natural genius!

The Perennial Bachelor is born, and not made!

Address on Drama Is Given at Club Women's Meeting

DWIGHT PACKARD, professor of contemporary drama at Kenyon college, Gambier, spoke before the members of the Literature Study club and their guests, the Advance club and a number of friends, last night at the home of Mrs Elmore Young, St. James st. His subject was, "How To Read a Modern Play."

"It is surprising to learn," said Professor Packard "how many discriminating and careful readers of today believe that no plays are worth considering as literature, except the old ones of Shakespeare Johnson, Moliere, Goldsmith and Sheridan. The revival of dramatic literature at the end of the nineteenth century includes the names of some of the best writers of all periods. Notable among these men are Wilde, Pinero Jones, Shaw and Galsworthy."

Reviews History

Following a brief summary of the history of the drama from Shakespeare's time, Professor Packard emphasized the struggle that the modern drama has had in reestablishing itself in the good graces of the literary and the discriminating theater-goer as well as the reader.

In commenting on the complexity of a play, especially to the untrained and untitated reader, Professor Packard said: "The novel is the work of the individual; a play is the cooperative effort of author, actor, producer, and even audience or reader."

Mr Packard read from and analyzed two modern plays, George Bernard Shaw's "Candida" and Barrie's, "What Every Woman Knows."

Enjoys Social Hour

Following the address, the hostess served refreshments, and a social hour was enjoyed. Preceding the address, Mrs. C. E. Heuney welcomed the guests, and introduced the speaker. Included in the list of guests, besides the regular club members and the Advance club, were Mrs. A. W. Gracely, Mrs. S. R. Rauhauser, Mrs. S. G. Rosenberg, Mrs. Lorena Cobb, Mrs. W. F. Pasters, Mrs C. B. Rayburn, Mrs. Lulu M. Ritter, Mrs. A. E. Mautz, Mrs. Benjamin Jacoby, Misses Dorothy Strehlz, and Betty Mautz, and David Morgan.

Announcement was made that the next meeting of the club would be May 6 with Miss Rose Rosenberg, Courtland av.

Johnson City, N. Y.—"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely 'a friend in need.'"—Mrs. L. E. HALL, 223 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

WHAT TERRIBLE EVIL LAY BEHIND ITS MASK?

[illegible] NFR isn't the word. I [illegible] stayed on of my own [illegible] the work has been getting [illegible] more interesting. And this [illegible] soon exactly. There is a [illegible] passage leading out into the [illegible] this part of the building [illegible] eating in a great hollow [illegible] times at night I take a [illegible] more, and so does Tray- [illegible] never walk together. If [illegible] her friends had known [illegible] passage, they wouldn't [illegible] so terrified when Old [illegible] died his wrath."

[illegible] is a [illegible] of es- [illegible] Hannan eagerly, think- [illegible]

[illegible] mething of a chance," Max- [illegible] timidly at the door. He [illegible] voice. "But there is [illegible] He always carries the key [illegible] door that opens into the hid- [illegible] passage.

[illegible] a stout door and a strong lock. [illegible] Traycore is always watching [illegible] escapes that man. And he [illegible] shrewd as a fox. I have [illegible] feared him, and yet—yet I [illegible] did so. It has been like a [illegible] dream, with Traycore watch- [illegible] over me like an ogre. I am just [illegible] awakening." He mopped his [illegible] read with his handkerchief. "My [illegible] that man is a fiend in human [illegible]

"Yet you saw Old Winthrop im- [illegible] essed his own character and per- [illegible] ality on him?"

"Sounds like a contradiction, [illegible] n't it? But it's the story of [illegible] rankenstein all over again—of the [illegible] aster getting beyond the control of [illegible] s creator. I have told you how your [illegible] randfather molded Traycore's life [illegible] ording to his own pattern. Then [illegible] wrecked it by accidentally dis- [illegible] uring his face. Then he tried to [illegible] the wreckage together again. You [illegible] ee how Old Winthrop became the [illegible] strument of destiny in Traycore's [illegible] ves. But something that Old Win- [illegible] hrop's control was aroused in [illegible] Traycore when that fateful splash of [illegible] ed ruined his looks, when he saw his life go to pieces, when his friends deserted him, when his sweetheart ran away from him with a scream of horror. Maybe it was a latent devil in Traycore's heart that had waited for just such a calamity to be stirred into activity. At any rate, toward the very last of his life, Old Winthrop began to suspect that he had reared a monster."

"And what did he do?"

"What could he do? He felt responsible for Traycore. He had made him what he was. As he saw it, he had become Traycore's evil genius, although with the best intentions in the world. And while Old Winthrop lived the monster didn't show itself very much. There were just a few alarming symptoms. Occasionally he saw a blaze of hate in Traycore's eyes.

"Now, two of Old Winthrop's strongest traits were loyalty and a sense of fairness. He could have solved the problem easily enough by having Traycore incarcerated. But his sense of loyalty and fairness rebelled against that. He had made Traycore what he was. Besides, the man worshiped him. Monster or angel, he was Old Winthrop's creature.

"Such being the case, he could not deal harshly with him.

"There was one reassuring circumstance, however. Traycore was not likely to leave this portion of the building, except for short walks late at night. His extreme sensitiveness over his disfigurement was an insurance against that. The only danger was that some one might trespass beyond the iron door. John Brock was not likely to do so, and strangers had no business in any part of the house. The only possible danger was to members of the Marteuet family. You know how Old Winthrop tried to guard against the danger by leaving a solemn warning against entering the iron door. He believed that warning would be heeded. He felt there was enough loyalty and honor in the Marteuet family to make his injunction effective. He never dreamed that his own son could ever sink low enough to violate it."

"Now, dad! You were only human.'

"I was a poor, weak fool."

"But don't you see, dad, if you hadn't come here contrary to Old Winthrop's wishes, then you wouldn't be here now to show Viola and me the way out?"

"Something in that," said Maxwell feebly. "I hope that can retrieve my blunder somehow. If I could only be sure! Traycore is a terrible man. Little by little I've fallen into his power. He controls me just as Old Winthrop controlled him. Only yesterday he told me to go out in the other part of the house and bring Peters to him. I didn't want to do it; I felt what was coming, yet I did. And that's only an example."

"Well," said Hannan consolingly, "I don't know what happened to Peters, but whatever it was it was only a sort of primitive justice. Buck up, dad. Things aren't as black as they seem. You blame yourself too much. Whatever you have done I'm sure it has all been for the best."

"I try to think so," Maxwell mumbled. "And I've done my best to make up for my great mistake. Perhaps we can find a way out, you and I. We must. Alone I couldn't have done anything. I would never have dared defy Traycore. But with you here it's different. We'll plan something. We'll steal a march on him somehow. First of all we must plan how to get the key away from him Then—"

"Yes, Maxwell," said a voice; "what then?"

The door had opened noiselessly. In the opening stood a tall, broad man in faded garments of old-fashioned cut. His face, like a great scar with a crooked gash for mouth and two pale orifices for eyes, was awful to behold.

"So we'll plan something, will we? We'll steal a march, eh?" The taunting words were addressed to Maxwell, who stood cringing before him. "What a lovely arrangement! And so beautifully simple! "All we need is the key, and then——" He threw back his head and laughed.

Hannan watched him with a sickening sensation. Dr. Traycore was not only hideous to look at, but all the evil in the world seemed stamped indelibly on his features.

Maxwell trembled. The effects of years of submission to stronger wills than his own were shown in his frightened, cowering attitude.

"You're a fool, Maxwell," Traycore went on. "Don't you know that it's useless to try to deceive me Don't you realize that I can checkmate every move your poor brain can think of Leave us now. I want to be alone with your handsome son."

But for once Maxwell resisted the voice of authority. It was a feeble resistance, yet the worm had turned at last. He drew up his head and fixed Traycore with a look of tremulous mutiny.

"Go," Traycore commanded sharply.

Maxwell swallowed with difficulty. He looked obliquely at his son, and Hannan gave a slight nod. For the present, he saw, nothing could be gained by antagonizing the doctor.

Still Maxwell hesitated. There was still a trace of feeble defiance. "If I go," he said, "will you promise that no harm will come to my son."

"You will go regardless," declared Traycore sharply. For a moment he looked narrowly at the gray, timid man, as if puzzled by this unusual show of resistance. "I'm not promising anything. However, you needn't worry. This young man is Old Winthrop's own flesh and blood. That's enough for me. He is safe."

Maxwell walked out.

The two men in the room studied each other.

"You are a handsome youngster," Traycore remarked. "It is fortunate for you that you are Old Winthrop's grandson."

Hannan could not quite see the connecting link between the two statements, but the words left an unpleasant impression on his mind.

"You have your grandfather's features," the doctor went on. "I imagine you have his temper, too. You are adventurous, aggressive, strong-headed, just like Old Winthrop. You are not easily influenced. You have a mind of your own. That's where you differ from your father. Maxwell bends whichever way the wind blows. He is a bit ridiculous, too."

"If you can't speak respectfully of my father," said Hannan softly, "I'll thank you to leave him out of the conversation."

Traycore's crooked lips twisted in a smile. "That's right, young man. I like that. I detest people who fawn and cringe, although I get along with them excellently. I'm beginning to understand. You are the kind that speaks softly and lugs a hard wallop. I hope we shan't come to blows."

"That depends," said Hannan, smiling.

"You see, Hannan," Traycore went on, "your father is prone to underrate my resourcefulness. It doesn't suit my convenience to have him walk off and leave me. I greatly prefer that he —and you, too—remain here for the present. And for you and him to leave this place wouldn't be quite so simple as Maxwell thinks. I have made various arrangements to forestall such an event. There is Cerberus, for instance. He would do his best to detain you."

A cold tremor ran down Hannan's back, but his face was a smiling mask.

"I understood Cerberus was caged."

"But he is automatically released when an unauthorized person enters the iron door. The same thing happens when a certain other door is opened against my wishes. But Maxwell doesn't know about the latter part of the arrangement. And that is only one of a great many precautions I have taken."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was the first day of May, and it was baaamy but kind of blotty, like everything was soaked till it couldn't be any soakier, but the birds were singing, and the worms were worming and everything.

My father said for me to go out to the pasture and take a look at the grass before I went to school to see if it was time to begin to take the cows out. I do not like to go to the pasture as much as I used to when we had a horse that we could all climb onto, but when a fella's father tells him to do anything it don't matter whether he likes to do it or not. I took some linen thread and a pinhook, along to see if I could catch a little catfish to slip into someone's lunch when we got back to school, and we all skun out as fast as we could go and hollering all the way. The grass is pretty good out there and I have got to start taking my cows out there again and so has Pennies and Johnnie Griswold. I tore up some of the sod on the bank of the creek and found me a worm. If I was a worm I would have better sense than to live in the ground right next to a creek full of fish. I had been fishing so long that the seat of my pants was wet through from sitting on the bank and I hadn't got a one, so I went to pull up to see if I had any worm left, and it felt like I was hooked onto an anchor, and when I got my hook to the top I found it was hooked into a big turtle. I didn't dast to pull him out because he was so big the thread would break or the hook would straighten out or something, so Nibs took off his britches and went in and got around behind the turtle and got hold of him with both hands. When he took hold of the turtle he had to let go of his shirt so that it came down in the water, and he had just handed the turtle to me when someone behind us said, "Oh, what have you got?" And we all looked around and there was Younnes and Feeble and Maggie. We had been so busy watching Nibs with the turtle that we hadn't seen them coming, and I looked around to see what Nibs was doing and he had squatted down in the creek so that only his head was out, and his lips were turning purple Feeble said to him, "Why don't you come out?" and he said to her, "Why don't you come in?" She said she had better sense and he said, so did he. Then he said he was coming out in a minute and get his britches, and they just stuck their heads up and marched off, and we went behind them with me carrying the turtle. I took it home and put it in the feed bin till I could think of something to do with it. It takes brains to think of anything to do with a turtle. But I have got what it takes

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Princess Olina May Set Her Cap for Georges

LILLIAN took the unfinished question from me and answered it promptly.

"If you think that Prince Georges' heart is behaving like a carom shot in billiards, I agree with you," she said.

"He could be happy with either," I quoted banally.

"Not that exactly," she returned. "He fancies himself wildly in love with Mary just about now. But I'll lay you a little two-to-one that while he'll be perfectly willing to have his own engagement announced to Princess Olina, he'll be knocked for two goals when she hands out the information that she's plighted her troth or what have you to the handsome heir of old Phil Verrizen."

"A subconscious," I ventured.

"Exactly," she returned. "He doesn't know himself what's the matter with him. Let's hope he doesn't come out of the ether before Olina does. We want the thing to be simultaneous to be effective."

"I think Olina's beginning to lift her head a bit," I said.

"Why?" she asked, and I told her of the girl's imperious demand to see Prince Georges, and of her insistence that she must tell him something before anyone else did."

"Aha" Lillian commented. "I heard her, squawk about seeing Georges, but put it down to her dear, imperious little ways, her notions that whatever she takes it into her head to do must be accomplished that minute, no matter how many potatoes are burned black in the attempt. But that spiel indicates something else—nothing more, I imagine, than her betrothal to Noel—not so?"

"That's what I thought," I agreed.

"And a good job you did, when you foi-l-l-ed her,' she grinned widely at me. "We're not ready for those announcements yet—you can't get out to buy anything for showers, and so on. We'll have to think up some scheme for delaying them. I'll put my great brain to work while you go over to the Tiders, and report to me when you get back."

I laughed outright at her adroit dismissal of me, and went out of the room, stopping only for a minute in Mary's room on my way downstairs. I knew that she would be wild to know how Olina's request to see Georges had fared, and I had not the heart to leave her longer in suspense.

"So she's trying to sink her fangs into Georges, too?" This was her greeting as I came into her room. She was sitting up in bed and I saw that her cheeks were flushed and her eyes bright with excitement.

"Didn't I tell you, Auntie Madge?" she went on horridly. "She not only wants Noel, but she wants to manage it so that I won't have any chance with Georges either."

A disclaimer of this sweeping statement was on my lips, but a second thought sent it back unuttered. If she fancied Olina was trying to win Georges' allegiance, also, she would not be so reluctant to act the role of the young prince's affectionate betrothed as she had been but a few moments before.

"You may be right, Mary," I said judicially. "I'm not enough versed in the ways of modern young women to judge. But one thing you may be sure of. She did not see him, and she is not going to see him until I decide that it is best for all concerned."

Mary made a flying leap for me and hugged me rapturously.

"You are the best sport ever, Auntie Madge," she said. "And I'll promise you from now on, you won't have any trouble with me about Georges, at least while that striped tabby is around. But don't leave me alone with him too much. I'd rather strut my stuff in front of her."

"I'll see that you are duly chaperoned," I told her, laughing. "But I also want you to remember that your role must be that of a capricious American girl intent upon a career and impatient of interference."

"I shan't have to act much if I attempt that role," Mary said mischievously, and I took her arms from around my neck and put her back against her pillows.

"All you have to do now is to rest and not excite yourself like this any more," I told her, but when I had closed her door and was on my way downstairs, I wondered to what folly Mary's intense jealousy and dislike of Olina might lead her.

POWER HEAD WOULD BUY MORE PAPERS

Graustein Declares Holdings To Be Increased When It Seems Desirable

WASHINGTON, May 1—The powerful International Paper and Power Co., which already has bought into a dozen large newspapers to the extent of more than $10 000 000, plans to increase its stockholding in the daily publishing field whenever it seems desirable to do so

This statement was made to International News Service by A H Graustein president of the great power corporation Just before he left Washington for New York to obtain additional data requested by the federal trade commission in its investigation of the so-called power trust and the trusts propaganda activities against public ownership of utilities.

Graustein fairly startled the commission by revealing the extent of the corporation's present newspaper holdings He disclosed that the $100 000 000 concern which he heads has acquired large holdings of stock in such dailies as the Boston Herald Boston Traveller Chicago Journal Chicago News Brooklyn Eagle Albany Knickerbocker Press Albany Evening News, Tampa Tribune and others

The corporation has helped to finance Frank E Gannett in the purchase of newspapers Gannett's string now embraces some 18 newspapers scattered through New York and New England

Future acquisition of newspaper properties Graustein said depends upon conditions

If it seems to the advantage of the company to purchase other interests it will be done he said About one tenth of our newsprint output is now purchased by the interests in which we have stock holdings That absorbs what we might call the surplus production of the company

NOGALES GIVEN UP WITHOUT STRUGGLE

Last of Rebel Strongholds Occupied by Federals, Leaders Desert Troops

NOGALES Ariz May 1—Surrender of the adjoining Sonoran town of Nogales last of the rebel strongholds with out a shot or gesture of protest left the federals in complete control today and apparently marked the close of organized Mexican revolution

American troops under arms in view of a remote possibility that trouble might break out afresh today in Nogales across the border

The final hours of the revolt teemed with drama and came after a lay of electrical tenseness that saw willing fighters left to shift for themselves by the desertion of trusted leaders American troops hurriedly called to arms and finally a frenzied exodus of the rank and file to the United States

Shining through the rather ignominious finish of the revolt was the heroism of Yaqui Indian troops Reviling the leaders who urged them to surrender they made preparations to hold Nogales themselves and were finally driven by lack of food to give up the plan Most of them fled to mountain fastnesses

Panic and confusion seized the rebel troops when it became known that the leaders who had persuaded them to revolt had deserted and left them to face the consequences It was then that the revolutionists flung down their weapons gathered their pitifully few possessions and with their families swarmed over the border here

Famous Love Stories of the Operas

BY RUTH MORRIS

Carmen and Don Jose—An Immortal Romance Which Ended in—Tragedy

CARMEN one of the most celebrated vampires of history was no petted and spoiled darling in silks and lace She was an ignorant little factory girl working hard at her trade of cigarette making possessor of a fiery temper and blessed with wonderful beauty and she had a personality that made men her willing slaves This poor little cigarettiere was the exponent of a perfect cure load of that quality Flinor Glyn has cryptically termed It

It was quite natural that Don Jose captain of the Spanish guard stationed at Seville should have fallen under her spell But it was slightly embarrassing for poor Jose who was betrothed to Michaela a sweet country girl to whom he planned some day to return and wed

So Jose a brave soldier but not so sparkling a wit decided to treat the beguiling Carmen with indifference—the very worst defense he could have offered had he but known Carmen who was attracted only by those who were not captivated by her charms She took no immediate passionate garde a toi was her legend

One day when the fiery Carmen had engaged in a pleasant session of hair pulling and face-scratching with a factory worker she was arrested by the military and given into the charge of Don Jose to be carried off safe to prison Justice suffered and the smitten Jose permitted his captive to go free In return for this insubordination Jose was incarcerated in the town jail

Don Jose languishing in jail was torn between duty to Michaela and love for the beautiful cigarettiere It was a storm tossed battle more fatal than any actual clash of arms for at its termination when the soldier was freed he rushed immediately to Carmen to clasp the willing Carmen in his arms

Carmen's associates were about to set out upon a smuggling expedition when Jose appeared They had tried to persuade Carmen to accompany them but she preferred to remain in Seville near her gallant captain Fate took the lovers future into its own hands however when Jose in a duel over Carmen killed a superior officer and was forced to flee the Spanish town

Jose transformation from an indifferent admirer into a worshipping swain was hardly guaranteed to keep the affection of the spoiled and admired Spanish girl She soon became bored with his love and fretted to be back in the brightness and jollity of Seville—particularly since he had encountered Escamillo a handsome Toreador who promised life long devotion and the very best seat to be obtained at next week's bullfight

A young lady of Carmen's impulsiveness could hardly be expected to remain in a place that displeased her so off she went leaving the discarded Jose to his Michaela

Back in Seville everything was gay in preparation for the big bull fight And none was gayer than Carmen light of heart light of love and decked out in the most gorgeous of garments Escamillo could buy for her She fought back her hidden terror of the jealous Jose, and threaded a triumphant way to the bullfight—one which she was destined never to see. Jose intercepted her at the entrance to the stadium begged her to return to him and on being spurned in no uncertain terms stabbed her to the heart, immediately terminating his sorrow with a similar gesture

AIR MAIL CHANGES BECOME EFFECTIVE

New Arrangement Improves Service Out of Local Postoffice

New air mail changes from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast, which were announced about a month ago, became effective today. Under the new schedule a letter leaving Marion as late as 4:55 p. m. will catch the plane leaving Cleveland for New York City at 12:15 a. m. Thus gets the letter into New York around 4:30 or 5 o'clock. A letter mailed here by 6:15 p. m. will get to Cleveland in time to make the 2:30 a. m. plane west.

One other trip is made from Cleveland daily, besides the ones mentioned above. In addition to the plane leaving Cleveland for the west at 2:30 a. m., a plane will leave for the Pacific coast at 4:35 p. m. Planes for the east from Cleveland will leave at 12:15 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. No direct connection can be made at present for the noon plane but a plan is being worked out so that letters may be mailed here late enough to make direct connection on that plane.

Also no direct connections can be made now at Cleveland from Marion for the 4:55 p. m. plane leaving for the west. However, a letter mailed here by 6:45 o'clock p. m. will reach Chicago in time to catch the same plane for the west. This plane is scheduled to leave Chicago at 8 o'clock a. m.

Officials at Washington are also working now on a plan whereby a letter can be mailed out of here as late as 10:10 o'clock p. m. and reach Chicago in time to catch the 8 a. m. plane for the west. Definite word is expected on this in a few days.

STATEMENT IN COURT CASE REPORT DENIED

Denial of a statement made in last night's news report regarding charges filed in Municipal court against Theodore Minshall, of 137 Carhart st., was made in his behalf today by Mrs. Minshall. She says there is no truth in the report that children trespassing at his home were slapped by him. Minshall is to appear in court Friday afternoon to answer an affidavit filed against him by William Ruppart, charging assault. The report that a neighborhood quarrel led to filing of the charge is also denied by Mrs. Minshall.

BROTHER ADMITS SHOOTING

Stone, 11, who, he told police, had accidentally shot and killed herself when she stumbled from the porch of her home Monday afternoon, confessed to Coroner Guy Boyer here today that he had shot his sister himself. "It was an accident," the boy sobbed.

This country realizes only dimly what sort of war it was.

France knows. On the records are 300,000 French soldiers, every one of them wounded more than five times.

French pensioners to whom their country pays $100,000,000 a year include 2,000 totally blind and 2,000 without arms or legs.

Do you wonder that France has built the world's greatest fighting air fleet and refuses to discuss peace without adequate defense?

CITY VIEWED FROM COURTHOUSE CLOCK

The big cable that runs the clock was also lifted several turns of the crank.

The clock and striking hammer are wound on the order of an old-fashioned wash day wringer, except that the crank is a mammoth affair and the cranking is a hard, hard job.

The large bell is not rung by means of the wheel and clapper, but by a hammer which automatically strikes the bell on the hour. Years of hammering have worn a great deal of the edge of that instrument off, but have only succeeded in making the bell bright and shiny on the spot it hits.

The clock has been in the courthouse since it was built in 1881 and has never been repaired. It has been necessary to change the cable holding the weights twice in 28 years. The clock was made by the makers of the famous Seth-Thomas timepieces that are known around the world for their accurate time keeping and long-wearing qualities.

But the way to all this glory and information is up devious stairs, cloaked in mystery and solemnity. The first flight of stairs is made up of steps about 12 inches high and four inches wide. This brings the explorer above the second floor offices. Up two more short flights is the room in which the clock machinery is housed. The second of these two flights is rather "low" going, stooping beneath rafters, and picking one's way over pipes.

First Balcony Seen

Another flight of stairs and the inquisitive person is out on the first balcony, hobnobbing with the big bell and observing Marion.

Foliage of the many trees, in varying shades of green, hides the plan of plan of the city at this time of year, but it is possible to pick out the American Malleable Castings Co., Marion Steam Shovel Co., and Huber Manufacturing Co. plants, prominent churches and schools, the Schaffner-Queen Funeral home, and in the far distance, the Hornell Ice & Cold Storage Co.

The courthouse is not high enough for a person to get a view of Marion on a planned and laid-out basis. From this balcony, upon which the rustling shades of green, hides the swaying breezes, and gaze down upon their exclusive garden club, the traveler climbs a short and steep ladder into the innermost recesses of the clock.

Perhaps when the excursion to the courthouse clock becomes popular enough, it will be made all in good clean fun, but Tuesday, it was noticeably grimy.

On the way down, the reporter and guide, John Haines, courthouse custodian, viewed the ceilings of various rooms, and observed the tops of the big vaults in the clerk's office which many of the important records of the county. These vaults are made of brick, concrete and steel, and have been guaranteed to stand when the rest of the building is burned to the ground.

Mr. Haines was also kind enough to call attention to the big water tank that supplied the county building with water before the Marion Water Co. was founded. During the war lead was valuable and the tank was milked and the material sold.

Letters Growing Dim

If Marion doesn't hurry along with its airport and get planes to flying over the city soon, by the time they begin to arrive the huge yellow letters, "Marion," painted on top of the first building east of the courthouse, will be entirely obliterated. A few more puffs of smoke from the thousand and one filthy stacks over the city, and the chimneys of the court house, and aviators won't know the name of the village they're cruising over.

It was peculiar to notice the large number of smoke stacks over the city in comparison to the size of the town North, east, south and west, with many in between, the stacks pour forth buckets of soot for poor house wives and janitors to sweep up.

W. H. Howard, pastor. New members are considered those who have joined the church since the last reception, and these will be the guests of the older members. The purpose of the meeting is that all may meet and become acquainted. Refreshments will be served.

SET PENSION DAY

Examination of County's Blind to Be Held at Courthouse Thursday

Examination of blind pensioners will be held by the board of county commissioners at its office in the courthouse Thursday. This will be the annual examination into the conditions of those drawing blind relief.

At present 82 person are on the blind pension list. Pension payments range from $15 to $37.50 each three months, according to records in the commissioners' office.

FORGIVEN SINNER IS SERMON TOPIC

Transformation Brought by Real Religion, Woman Evangelist Says

In her sermon last night at Calvary Evangelical church, Mrs. Edna Brougher Hughes, evangelist, said: "There is a difference between those who profess to know Christ, who belong to church and those who know Him in all His fullness.

"I believe the world is hungry for a real experience of the knowledge of Jesus Christ and is anxious to see a reality in the religion of Christ. When Christ comes in there is a wonderful transformation. I am not so concerned about folks reforming, as I am getting them transformed."

Continuing in her sermon on "The Evidences of a Forgiven Sinner," Mrs. Hughes said: "There are several evidences of a forgiven sinner. He has peace with God. Jesus offers rest for the weary, something no other individual can offer. Sometimes we think the things God asks us to do are tremendously hard, but He has some reason for asking us to do these things, they make us love Him more, make somebody else love Him and make somebody else want to know Him.

The forgiven sinner has peace also with folks. There are no petty disagreements among folks who really know Him in His fullness, they love one another. I have been in churches where I have thought it was a fine thing that they had plenty of aisles, so folks could go in and out without meeting the folks they didn't like and wouldn't speak to."

There were six responses to the altar call last night.

REED WILL PREVENT VOTE ON ORIGINS ACT

Senator Declares He Will Not Compromise on Immigration Law

WASHINGTON, May 1 — The four-year-old controversy over the immigration law, which has provoked a split between President Hoover and Republican leaders in congress, flared forth anew today.

Senator David A. Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, who has broken with the president on the question, announced he would accept no compromise in his battle to prevent repeal of national origins sections of the new law. At the last session of congress, he blocked action on a resolution proposing its repeal and at this session, he declared he would again prevent a vote.

Senators Nye, Republican of North Dakota, and Johnson, Republican of California, who have led the fight for repeal of the new quotas, meanwhile said they would continue their fight to get a vote in the senate on the issue. They formed the minority of the senate immigration committee which upheld President Hoover's request while the majority of the committee was disregarding it to oppose repeal of the quotas, which go into effect on July 1.

The whole controversy has revolved around a new computation of immigration quotas, based on national origins of the American people. Under the old law, quotas were fixed on the basis of the 1890 population. Under the new law, they are based on the origins of all the 120,000,000 people now here.

Little in Groh Cleanup

Possession, sale or giving away of intoxicants is punishable by a fine of $100 to $1,000 for the first offense under that measure.

Old records were dug into and it was found that former Gov. Vic Donahey dismissed S. A. Probst, deputy prohibition commissioner, for allegedly using women characters in obtaining evidence against a Westerville liquor law violator. "We need not resort to frame-ups in the enforcement of prohibition," Donahey then said.

Ed Little is remembered as the agent, who led the recent "clean-up" of Dover, Ohio, which resulted in the "firing" of Peter J. Groh from the office of mayor.

Testifies She Drank

Miss Gunion, at the arraignment, testified she drank wine with the agents, and also that she had been given $2 by the agents, with which she made the liquor purchase from Amos Funkhauser at the home of Harry Poole. This was during an automobile ride they had taken with the agents, after a "proper introduction," they declared.

Both Miss Gunion and Miss Walton are pretty and they were well-dressed.

The foregoing occurred during Ed Little's liquor drive in Lancaster last February.

REFUSE TO CONDEMN ATTACK ON HEFLIN

Senate Members Give Alabama Politician Worst Defeat in Career

WASHINGTON, May 1—The senate this afternoon refused to condemn the attack upon Senator J. Thomas Heflin, Democrat of Alabama, at Brockton, Mass., last month.

Giving Heflin the vote he demanded for the past week, Republican leaders killed his resolution on a record roll call. Their original intention to pass the resolution was changed, when Heflin renewed his frequent attacks on the Catholic church.

The opposition was strengthened too, by the impassioned speech by Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, for religious tolerance. Borah said he deplored the attack on Heflin but that as the senator went to Massachusetts as a private citizen it would be improper for the senate to take any action.

The devote was 11 to 69 for adoption of the resolution, marking the worst defeat ever administered to Heflin in his senatorial career.

SALE OF BUILDING REVEALS HISTORY

"Dr. Denman's Home," 190 West Center St., Will Be Torn Down

Announcement of plans for sale and removal of the large red frame dwelling house at No. 190 West Center st., long known as the "Dr. Denman home," has brought to light some interesting details in the history of this property.

The property is now owned by the R. T. Lewis Co. Mr. Lewis having recently purchased the interest of C. L. Lewis, of Harpster, former lieutenant governor of Ohio. The red frame house will be sold at public auction Saturday and will later be torn down.

For many years the house has provided office space for physicians and has served as a residence for some of its medical tenants. The house has long been known as the Dr. Denman home due to the fact that it served as office and residence for the doctor for many years. Later it was occupied by Dr. Filmore Young and Dr. E. O. Richardson.

At present the building serves as the home of the Arden Shop where hemstitching and other fancy sewing is done.

R. T. Lewis, the present owner, and Charles Lewis bought the building about 15 years ago from Mrs. Denman. At the time of the purchase it was intended to erect a new hotel building on the site. This proposition never developed, however, due to the outbreak of the World war.

In 1926 R. T. Lewis and other Marion men raised stock subscription of $101,000 for the erection of a 120-room hotel on the site. The building was to cost approximately $75,000 and the remainder of the stock subscription was to be bonded. The first payment on the stock subscription had already been made when the United States declared war. These payments were returned to the subscribers.

Mr. Lewis stated today that the building would be torn down as soon as possible after the sale. He made no statement concerning his future plans for utilizing the site.

SEE JEALOUSY AS MOTIVE IN MURDER

Police Find That Young Bride Was Known "Prom-Trotter" to Fraternities

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 1—Earl Francis Peacox, the youth who tinkered with life like the radio sets he repaired, killed and then burned the body of his pretty 20-year-old wife, Dorothy, because he was madly jealous.

As the radio repair man and amateur scientist faced arraignment today to be formally charged with the torch murder of his estranged wife, authorities uncovered evidence pointing at the motive.

A romantic letter from a Baltimore college boy to Dorothy revealed the slain girl as a "prom-trotter" to fraternity houses despite her status as a married woman.

The amazing self-control of the 21-year old mechanic was displayed in details uncovered today concerning his actions following the crime.

Turns To Radio

Peacox had pounded Dorothy to death with a pistol butt in his home in Mount Vernon on the night of their first wedding anniversary. He felt her pulse, her heart—everything was still. The body was getting cold.

Young Peacox turned to his other love—his radio set. He kept trying different stations—tinkering, tinkering, tinkering—with the dead body of his wife on the floor.

"He played his radio for three hours before he carried out the body," revealed Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, his neighbors.

Peacox forced the body into his automobile and drove out into the country. And under a blossoming apple tree where as boy-and-girl sweethearts they had trysted, he hid the body.

"It was raining—as if somebody were crying," recalled Peacox. A strange bit of poetic observation from such a murderer.

And for the week following the deed, Peacox made gay at night—probably to forget what he had done.

Bickerings over Money

Then last Friday night, five days after the murder, Peacox went straight from his dance hall enjoyment again to the apple blossom tree where he poured kerosene over his dead bride's body and set it ablaze.

The married life of Dorothy and Earl was filled with bickerings—over money matters and mutual accusations, friends said.

"Dot told me that she and her husband were always arguing about money," said Corrinne Sloan, of New Britain, Conn. "She said to me more than once, 'Never marry a man, Corrinne, unless he has plenty of money'."

COAL DUST SPECKS ARE PHOTOGRAPHED

Chemists Study Behavior of Dust in Relation to Mine Work

COLUMBUS, May 1—Technicalities of the chemistry industry, such as the behavior of single specks of coal dust, and the maintenance of chemical equilibrium in evaporating water for steam generation, all of which makes the average brain whirl in helplessness, were the subjects of discussion as the seventy-seventh annual convention of the American Chemical society entered its third day at the Ohio State university here.

One other interesting topic was the explanation of foam. A new theory of the fluffy substance was explained by Prof C. W. Foulk of the department of chemistry at the Ohio State university here, who reported his researches in "Liquid Film Formation."

"Even man's social culture is influenced by foams," Prof Foulk pointed out, "to such an extent that it sometimes demands a stable foam as in beer and soda water, and sometimes an instable one as in champagne and gingerale."

The behavior of single specks of coal dust, each photographed as it fell through the heated enclosure of a miniature furnace, was described by three chemists, H. K. Griffin, and David F. Smith, of the Pittsburgh experiment station of the U. S. bureau of mines, and J. R. Adams, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

For the first time in history a body of scientists, through the "talkie movies," will see and hear an experiment performed in one of the country's best equipped laboratories. The experiment is on the subject "oil films on water" and is to be conducted this afternoon.

...DY SAYS AMERICA CAN LEAD IN AIR

...ing Colonel Urges Fields Near Business Sections, Cnided Over Mud

...INGTON May 1—Interna... Air Lines will b... ...ween North and South ... a few years pilots will land their planes by the aid of science without ever seeing the ground and America can lead the world in aviation

These declarations late yesterday featured the air advice of Col Charles A Lindbergh to a congressional joint committee authorized to pick a new airport site for Washington Lindbergh was given an ovation by senators and representatives when he visited the senate floor

Warning Issued

The conqueror of the Atlantic pictured America as an air minded nation of the future He warned civic authorities that there is not a single model airport in the United States and that the cities must bring their air-field equipment up to date The model airport he announced must have a landing field one mile square with 3,500-foot runways of concrete and asphalt with hotel and restaurant accommodations available and—above all—located within twenty minutes distance of the business section

They are now flying regular service three days a week between Miami and Panama Lindy added In a few months another line will be opened down the west coast In a year or two we will fly directly from Washington or New York to Buenos Aire or Rio de Janeiro

His statement that aviation would overcome the hazards of fog surprised the committee

Radio Beam To Aid

It is entirely possible that in the future through the use of radio beams we will be able to land a plane on a field in a fog without seeing the field in the process of landing he said

At the hearing there was an indirect reference to his action recently in driving mud upon a throng of visitors at Bolling Field It provoked more blushes Lindy first admitted he had been mired at Bolling Field when he landed there in the mud Monday

You've been annoyed by mud there before haven't you colonel he was asked but he didn't reply

Lindy praised the airports at Cicero near Chicago and at Oakland Cal as the finest in the country today

No Weight Limit for Love

Living Skeleton Fights Daredevil in Quest of Fat Lady

NEW YORK May 1 — Would think a 46-pound man in his right mind would take someone his own size But Love knows no discrimination As soon as Bill Barrow the Living Skeleton in a side show, had eyes on Jolly Nelly the 788 pound nymph he was spoiled for all other women

Bill's affection was not unrequited either Nelly loved him with a passion which can only be inspired by true love In fact she thrived on it Her appetite increased her eyes were brighter her spirits rose—and so did her weight

Soon their cloud of happiness burst They quarreled bitterly and separated each going to a separate end of the world to join separate shows

It was in Manila where fate brought Bill and Nelly together again at the carnival where the jolly Fat Girl was working Bill elated after the long period of separation made immediate overtures but alas Nelly sounded that someone had stepped into Bill's shoes—legally at that

Just at that moment Daredevil Dave, for it was none other than he who had won her heart stepped into Nelly's tent He made it very evident that he didn't approve of Nelly's choice of friends but said nothing

A sleepless night however brought him back to the show the next day He simply couldn't stay away even with the image of the daring motor cyclist before him he who defied the force of gravity by riding around a perpendicular wall

This time Dave lost his patience It was going to be a fight to the finish and it would be worth it too for the heart of the winsome Jolly Nelly But it didn't take Dave very long to do up the 46 pound suitor

The upshot of it all was that Nelly kept her man Daredevil Dave got a jail sentence besides having to pay $750 for Bill's hospital bills and the Living Skeleton who weighed himself after leaving the hospital finds that he now weighs exactly 11 pounds which, even for a skeleton is what would call a meager weight

IF you are going to trade in your car

MANY families are about to trade in their present cars for new cars. It will be to their interest to read and remember the basic facts about used car allowances.

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value. That is, what the dealer who accepts it can get for it in the used car market.

2 It has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that the new car offered you has been excessively priced.

5 First consider the merits of each new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh the different allowances offered on your present car.

6 A trade-in transaction is a purchase, not a sale. Its real measure is whether you get full new car value for your present car, plus the balance that you pay in cash.

CHEVROLET

Another Record!

over 500,000 New Six Cylinder CHEVROLETS since Jan. 1st

Sweeping constantly ahead to greater and greater heights of popularity . . . making and breaking new records of success with impressive regularity . . . the new Chevrolet Six has established one of the most remarkable records in automotive history—more than 500,000 on the road since January 1st!

Not only does this brilliant accomplishment surpass the greatest record that Chevrolet has ever achieved in the past—but it brings to Chevrolet the significant honor of having built in only four months a greater number of six-cylinder cars than any other manufacturer has ever produced in an entire year!

Even with such a record to focus attention upon the outstanding value of the Chevrolet Six—many people still do not appreciate what "a Six in the price range of the four" actually means!

To such persons, consideration of the features responsible for this tremendous popularity will prove a revelation. So read the adjoining column carefully—and then come in and ask for a ride in this sensational six-cylinder car.

The ROADSTER	$525
The PHAETON	$525
The COUPE	$595
The SEDAN	$675
The Sport CABRIOLET	$695

The COACH $595

All prices f. o. b. factory Flint, Michigan

The Convertible LANDAU	$725
The Sedan Delivery	$595
Light Delivery Chassis	$400
1½ Ton Chassis	$545
1½ Ton Chassis With Cab	$650

COMPARE the delivered price as well as the list price in considering automobile values. Chevrolet's delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Outstanding Features of the New Chevrolet Six that have created this Tremendous Popularity—

6-Cylinder Smoothness

Due to the finer inherent balance of its six-cylinder motor—the new Chevrolet Six provides that smooth, quiet, flexible performance which is characteristic of the truly fine automobile. At every speed, the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.

6-Cylinder Getaway

In sheer brilliance of performance, as well as in smoothness and quietness of operation, the new Chevrolet Six is a revelation. Acceleration is remarkably fast. And a new non-detonating cylinder head eliminates every trace of "lugging."

6-Cylinder Speed

The new Chevrolet Six has speed in abundance—but even more important than its speed is the smooth, quiet, restful comfort you experience at every point on the speedometer. You can open the throttle wide with a feeling of complete security.

Better Than 20 Miles Per Gallon

The marvelous performance of the Chevrolet Six would be exceptional in any car. But in the new Chevrolet Six it is actually sensational—for here it is combined with an economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

Exceptional Riding Comfort

Another vital factor that has influenced over a half-million people in their selection of the new Chevrolet Six is its marvelous riding comfort. It travels smoothly over rough roads—and its balance on turns and corners is exceptional.

Beautiful Fisher Bodies

Longer, lower and roomier—finished in attractive, long-lasting colors—and upholstered in rich, deep-tufted fabrics—the new Fisher bodies on the Chevrolet Six introduce into the low-price field an entirely new measure of style and distinction.

Proved Dependability

Tested for more than a million miles on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground—the new Chevrolet Six went into the hands of its owners thoroughly proved in every detail. And now reports of its performance on the highways of the nation pay glowing tribute to its endurance and dependability.

Amazing Low Prices

An achievement that surpasses even the brilliant performance qualities of this sensational six-cylinder car are the prices at which it is offered. Study these prices, and compare them with any other car and you will recognize the remarkable value represented in this Six in the price range of the four!

DENIES HOME GIRLS GIVEN TO DRINKING

Publication of Former Xenia Teacher's Letter Causes Stir in Ohio City

XENIA May 1—Publication of a letter said to have been written by a former school teacher of the Soldiers and Sailors Orphans home here in which it was charged that whisky drinking was done by girl students at the institution today had caused a furore of excited gossip to sweep this town while state civil service commission officials began a probe into the allegations

Miss Mary Jane Skimming of Xenia and Miss Ethia Graham of Marysville, were suspended from their positions as teachers last fall upon charge of insubordination

They appealed to the home trustees and when these officials backed the action of the superintendent, Col C V Burton in suspending the teachers they took their case to the civil service commission which is in session here

At the first day of the hearing a letter said to have been written by Miss Graham in which she is alleged to have remarked that some of the girls are drinking whisky was disclosed

The letter had been written to Mrs Maude Newton former confidential clerk at the home and it fell into the hands of some students who gave it to Colonel Burton Burton in a formal statement denied that any such conditions existed in the sch ol

Total Subscriptions Amount to $894,650, Greatest Ever Pledged There

TOLEDO May 1—Toledo's 40 charities and welfare organizations will continue their work for another year unhampered by financial difficulties as a result of the sweeping victory of the Army of Community Chest workers which in its final meeting Monday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce reported total subscriptions of $894,650 the greatest amount ever subscribed in a Toledo chest campaign The goal was $800,000

Because of the remarkable organization that had been built up under the direction of General Chairman Alfred Jaretzki and William M Jenkins chairman of chest trustees and the almost general acceptance of the chest plan on the part of Toledo there seemed little doubt of the final result from the beginning

May Day Happy One for American Labor, Claim of Secretary James J. Davis

Next Census Will Show U. S. with Nearly Fifty Millions of People Gainfully Employed, Policy of Liberal Wage Gains in Favor

Editors Note May Day in Europe is a day of nervous tension of demonstrations by the proletariat and sometimes of riots and bloodshed

In the United States it is a day of peace and this May day finds employment high and general conditions of the workers good save in some portions of the textile and coal industries

In the following article Secretary of Labor Davis gives his views of conditions.

BY JAMES J DAVIS
Secretary of Labor

WASHINGTON May 1—May Day is a day of happiness and rejoicing for American labor

When the next census has been completed America will find she has nearly 50 millions of people gainfully employed with the vast majority of them in steady jobs

All our enlightened industrial leaders have come round to the policy of the liberal wage The employes who stand out against that policy merely put a spring in the wheel of American prosperity

Active Year for Steel

Employment this year has so far shown reassuring improvements over the corresponding period of last year Payroll totals are greatly improved Earnings are higher while unemployment has been reduced

Business conditions in general are such as to offer some guarantee that labor may continue to enjoy this improved state Steel, barometer of the business world stands in prospect of an unusually active year

Except for conditions in coal and textiles which have not yet yielded to efforts at stabilization industry in general is in a sound and peaceful state Relations between worker and employer throughout our industrial system have never been more harmonious Nothing in sight to disturb this era of good feeling in industry

The one cloud on the horizon to give labor the slightest uneasiness is the continued extension of automatic machinery with a tendency to displace workers for a temporary period This problem is now receiving attention on every hand at the hands of employers as well as by labor and by governmental agencies. The fact is recognized that such unemployment as results from the introduction of machinery is only temporary nevertheless Employers have seen the patent fact that business in general suffers when any considerable number of our people are reduced in purchasing power for even a temporary period

Means Expansions

Maximum employment for the maximum number of our people is at all times essential to our continued prosperity The problem of labor displacement by machinery thus affects employers as much as it distresses labor and because of this fact we may expect to see practical and effective measures to prevent serious disturbances to labor from this rapid extension of automatic machinery

In the long run every advance in industrial technique only ends in industrial expansions with new pursuits and employments

The immediate problem before our industrial leaders is so to introduce new machinery with a minimum of human displacement I am confident that with the interest at present aroused in this problem and in view of the thought expended upon it we may soon find ways of continuing the displaced worker in some profitable occupation

Apart from this natural effect of progress and aside from adjustments necessary in certain branches of our textile industry and in some bituminous coal districts nothing is in sight to interfere with another year of activity in industry with employment for more workers at the liberal wage that now rules throughout industry in general

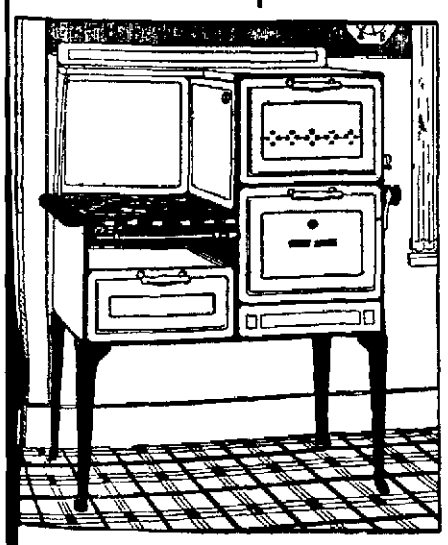
No bottom in this oven!



WE MEAN IT—there's no bottom in the oven of a Direct Action Red Wheel Gas Range to warp or rust out or burn out. This gives the following remarkable advantages that elicit words of praise and thankfulness from every user:

1 No pre-heating of the oven is necessary You get a hot oven almost instantly after burners are lighted.
2 Dishes that run over, such as juicy pies and puddings, flow into the "clean-out" pan below the heat of the oven burners. Hence, they do not burn or cause a smudge in the kitchen.
3 A saving of gas—meaning economy in gas bills.
4 The oven bottom rack is flush with the open oven door, forming a continuous shelf so that even the heaviest roasts can be slid in and out of the oven easily—without lifting.

In addition Direct Action Gas Ranges are each equipped with the Lorain Red Wheel Self-regulating Oven which automatically maintains the correct oven temperature while you are away from the kitchen. See these unusual features at our store.

The vast difference
a few dollars make

There is no better investment in the motor car market today than that small amount of money that represents the difference between the price of De Soto Six and that of lower priced cars

On the basis of cold cash alone, you will find that, over the whole period of your ownership, it will cost you less to buy and operate a De Soto Six than any car whose appeal is solely in its low purchase price.

For when you buy a De Soto Six, you not only spend fewer actual dollars in the long run, but you get vastly superior value for every dollar of your investment. Already you know that any Chrysler-built car includes a whole list of unique engineering features that make for finer, fuller enjoyment of motoring.

Already you know that any Chrysler-built car is ultra-smart in appearance, staunch, speedy, economical, easy in control, responsive—that it embodies the most attractive equipment and fittings that you can find in any motor cars.

Now we want to show you that you can afford to own a De Soto even though you had set your price limit somewhat lower and had resigned yourself to infinitely less than De Soto offers.

Check all of De Soto's remarkable features—find out how much less De Soto costs to maintain. Consider these items in relation to the purchase price—and you will be convinced that an investment in De Soto Six is not surpassed by anything in the low-price field.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS HERE SUNDAY

EAGLES' NINE WILL MEET SPRINGFIELD IN FIRST DIAMOND TILT

Lineup of Local Team Made Up of All Home Talent This Year

THE annual "flag raising" event at Lincoln park marking the opening of the semi-pro baseball season will take place Sunday afternoon when the Eagles meet the Kibler Clothiers of Springfield in the initial diamond performance of the year. The contest will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

"Home talent" will be used almost exclusively this season by the Eagles in their efforts to keep the hit-and-run game going in Marion. The contest Sunday will be the local team's first tilt of the season. No estimate can be placed on the strength of the various performers seeking permanent playing berths.

A wealth of material has been reporting for the practice sessions at Lincoln park for the past several weeks. Around 40 prospective players have been working out and according to present plans the entire team will be picked from the local and Marion county boys.

Pitching duties this season will be held down by Longshore and Roseberry. Longshore did most of the relief hurling last year and his heaves in practice sessions this year have quite a bit more zip and wizzle on them. Roseberry is from Richwood and is a veteran in mound duty. In addition he holds quite a reputation as a slugger.

Bill Toomire will handle the catching assignment for the local club. Toomire is another man from last year's nine. In an emergency Conroy can be placed behind the bat although his regular berth will be covering the initial sack.

Other berths on the team are not yet settled. Rinor or Oberlander will be seen at second with Shoup at short. Evans or Rinor will get the call at third with Higgins playing in left field. Irvin and Beimeyer have an even break for center field while the right field race rests among Crabtree, Bahlauf and McCann.

No special ceremonies are planned for the opening.

Ohio League Teams Split as Reds Defeats Cubs, Tribe Loses to Chisox

CINCY TAKES LEAD IN SERIES WITH 5-4 VICTORY OVER BRUINS

Hidden Ball Trick, Poor Base Running Puts Indians Behind

BY BOB ELLIOTT

ONCE more the old jinx which seems to prevent both of Ohio's major league ball teams winning on the same day was in good working order and as a result the Reds are bossing of their second win in three starts from the Cubs by a 5-to-4 score and the Indians are on their way home suffering from their fourth straight walloping at the hands of the White Sox, 8 to 4.

Jakie May, the Wendell, South Carolina moundsman, aided by four twin killings, allowed just 21 men to face him in the first seven frames. The Reds scored one in the fourth, and this looked mighty good until Rajah Hornsby parked one of Mr. Spalding's favorite apples over the outer garden wall. Wilson's triple and a single by Hirza Stephenson, scored one more. The Reds came right back with two more in their half of the eighth and were leading by one run when the last inning started. However the Cubs scored two times and took the lead. Manager Hendricks shot in three pinch hitters who delivered like nobody's business and before two were out the two winning runs were in and the game over.

Chuck Dressen and Hughey Critz got two hits each for the Reds, while English, Wilson and Grimm each managed to get in two safe blows. The Cubs were outhit only nine to eight but the four double plays pulled by Critz, Ford and Kelley were just a little too much.

Mr. Peckinpaugh's trained tribe of clowns continued on their merry pace toward the loop cellar. If nothing happens they'll be there before long. The only reason they are not there now is because Washington is still in the league. However just one game separates the two and today the tribe starts a series with the league leading St. Louis Browns at Dunn field. Wesley Ferrell will probably hurl for the

K. C. BLUES SWEEP SERIES AT TOLEDO

Association Teams Rest Today Before Swinging West Thursday

TEAMS of the American Association take a rest today after placing 13 games on the books, and the scene of action will shift to the western sphere around the Mississippi river tomorrow, at Minneapolis, St. Paul, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

The league-leading Kansas City club made a clean sweep of the series with Toledo, by winning the third and final game yesterday, 4-3. The Blues are on their way home today and will open their home season against Indianapolis in a four-game series.

Louisville took another tumble yesterday after a stiff battle with Minneapolis. The Millers were saved by the excellent relief work of Flint Rhem who pitched spotless ball in the last three innings and gave Minneapolis an 8-to-6 victory. The Colonels, with only four wins under the belt, open with the Milwaukee Brewers tomorrow.

Indianapolis evened the series with St. Paul yesterday by topping a 3-to-1 score. The Indians now hold sole possession of second place, but are still la long way from the lead. The Saints open their home season tomorrow against the Toledo Mud Hens, and are picked to win the series.

After losing three games in a row, the Milwaukee Brewers staged a comeback in another slug-fest with Columbus, and won, 16-10. The lowly beerboys made every hit count for a run, but had four errors chalked against them. The Senators, having snapped out of it, and being reinstated, to quote officials, are enroute to Minneapolis today where they take on the Millers for four games, beginning tomorrow.

BONE BROKEN

Injuries to Cub Catcher More Serious Than First Suspected

CINCINNATI, May 1 — Catcher Schulte of the Chicago Cubs, it was revealed here today, was more severely injured in Sunday's game than was supposed at first.

Schulte, who had just joined the Cubs, and was catching his third game, was spiked in the contest with the Cincinnati Reds Sunday.

The wound appeared to be ordinary at first, but the physician has found that a small bone in Schulte's foot is broken.

BABE RUTH'S HITTING NOT UP TO PAR AT END OF TWO WEEKS

Average in 10 Games Only .216; Pitchers Give Him Chance

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 1—Since the understanding is general that George H. Ruth, the well-known husband, wishes to be awarded a contract for $100,000 at the end of the current season, it might not be out of line to mention the fact today that what he is liable to get is the change out of a two dollar bill, unless he stops what he is doing, which seems to be mostly nothing. He has trundled his way through 10 games to date to a dapper .216 in the batting records and, as time goes on, the way he gets better is downright interesting. Ruth didn't have many points to waste but he lost about 15 of them during the week which ended today.

The boy friend often complained querulously in other years that he would hit 65 or 70 home runs if the pitchers would pitch to him but today he has no more come back than a toothbrush, slightly used. The boys are throwing them right past his indignant bosom, with the result that he hasn't been passed more than five times and only two of his drives have been with sufficient rancor as to leave the pastime abruptly. One of these was made off Hadley in Washington and goes down in the records as the only typical Ruth hit of the year to date. The other came from a half-swing at one of Ruffing's deliveries on the occasion of the great man's first time at bat this season.

The rest of the time he has been topping his drive or something. Thirteen times, more or less, has he been retired on infield chances, seven times has he fanned and perhaps as many as 10 men have been left on base. In no game has he made as many as two hits and neither double nor triple has surged from his bat. I doubt if he has driven in more than three runs, although scoring six as a strictly personal gesture.

These figures are more or less casual, since, as a statistician, I claim to be a high-grade chump. However, they serve their purpose in indicating that all, indeed, is not well with our Mr. Ruth.

His batting average is trifling enough, but it doesn't tell the story. Ruth has been a perennial leader in runs scored, runs driven in, extra base hitting and passes, in addition to his home runs. Except in the department first mentioned, he has been almost obscure.

As for his two home runs, a continuance of that pace will get him a few more than 30 at the pay off in October.

Of course, it may all come out in Monday's wash, for Mr. Ruth is an impulsive man and given to moods that defy explanation. He does nothing for 10 days and, on the eleventh, he does everything, leaving you the rest of the night in which to identify the dead and dying.

At the same time, I don't think even Mr. Ruth will deny that he might be able to use the three or four home runs that he hasn't got so far.

LEAGUE SLUGGERS GET 14 HOME RUNS; APRIL TOTAL IS 96

Five Circuit Clouts Hit In Clash Between Braves and Phillies

THE big league sluggers have broken out with a violent attack on the home-run rash again, yesterday's 14 circuit clouts bringing the April total for both leagues up to 96.

George Harper of the Boston Braves is setting the pace in the national league with four homers, and Lu Blue of the St. Louis Browns is leader in the American league derby, has the same number. Incidentally the batting of these two veterans has been an important factor in the ascent of their respective teams to first place.

Five of yesterday's homers were made in the Baker bowl handicap as the Braves outslugged the Phillies in a 14-to-12 nightmare. Four more were hit in the St. Louis-Detroit game, the Browns winning 6 to 5 and jumping to first place. In this game Emil Yde, the deceptive Dane who once pitched for Pittsburgh, was knocked out of the box by the Browns.

Gehrig's third homer of the season featured the Yankees 10-to-9 victory over Washington, a typical Yankee slugging match that lasted 11 innings. Fred Heimach, relief pitcher, won his own game with a double.

Rogers Hornsby hit his third homer for the Cubs, but the Bruins were nosed out in the tenth 5 to 4, on a wallop by pinch hitter Joe Stripp. Jakie May and Sheriff Blake did the throwing.

In sharp contrast to these slugging bees was the New York-Brooklyn contest, in which Dazzy Vance of the Robins, strikeout king of the National league, won a 2-to-0 decision over Bill Walker and Dutch Henry. New York got only three hits and Brooklyn four. Gilbert drove in Brooklyn's runs.

Another fine pitching performance was contributed by big Ed Morris of the Red Sox, who held the Athletics to four hits, one a homer by Simmons, and won 4 to 1. Earnshaw was the losing twirler.

Some men are liars, but not all liars are men.

JUNIOR BALL TEAMS TO MEET THURSDAY

Schedule and Playing Dates for Season To Be Drawn Up

According to all indications it seems as if the Marion county league in the American Legion Junior baseball tournament will consist of either four or six teams. A schedule meeting has been called for Thursday night at which time it will be decided what teams will be allowed to enter and when play will start. If there are only four teams entered play will not start until Saturday, May 11, while if six teams are entered play will start this Saturday.

At present the Dodgers, Marion county champions of last year, and the Kiwanians who finished fourth are the most advanced in organization. Twelve boys reported to Manager W. E. Hane of the Kiwanis team at yesterday's workout. Of these, two were regulars of last year, three substitutes from last year's team and seven new men.

During fielding practice Junior Clay, a new man, was at first. The rest of the infield was composed of substitute players from last year, Tom Johnston at second, Whitney Cookston at short and Robert Reed at third.

Two regulars of last year, Russell Harrold and Maurice Whitcum, and six new men worked in the outfield. Richard Morgan of last year's Scofield Heights team and Joe Darnell, a new man, are trying out for mound duty. Jack Ling, last year's regular first baseman, and several additional new men are expected to report today.

The Dodgers, with all but four of last year's team ruled out by the age limit rule, have conducted a raid on the Elk's and Wildcat teams. Eddie Russo, a shortstop, Carl Fadley, pitcher, Don Lindsley, outfielder, and Red Buckley, first sacker, have been obtained from the Elks and Cecil Newell, third base, Dean Eckenbarger, pitcher, Grant Hanawalt, catcher, and Curtis Frazer, outfield, are from the Wild Cats.

Shortly Clark is the only man on the squad who did not play in the league last year. The members of the squad who were regulars last year are Don McAninch, acting manager, Bill Adams, pitcher, Milton Puhler, short, and Sunny Copeland, second base.

CINCY TAKES LEAD IN SERIES WITH 5-4 VICTORY OVER BRUINS

tribe and either Sam Gray or Alvin Crowder for the Browns.

Two of the oldest tricks in the category of major league baseball helped the Sox to wallop the tribe yesterday. Willie Kamm wiped the dust off the old hidden ball trick and retired Charlie Jamieson in seventh. This was part of a triple play that the windy city team pulled in this inning. It took some terrible base running by the tribe, especially by Johnny Hodapp, to permit them to do it but the Indians were there with the goods. The tribe's fielding got a little better with Gardner committing little better with Gardner committing the only error but don't forget folks the mental errors don't go in the book. (The scorers haven't got room).

FAMOUS ROAD OVER RIVER IS REPLACED

DENVER, May 1 — The famous Fall River rd. over the Continental Divide between Estes Park and Grand Lake, Colo., will be replaced by a new highway, according to announcement here by Edmund B. Rogers, superintendent of the Rocky Mountain National Parks.

Plans for the new highway came with the ceding of jurisdiction by the State of Colorado of the Rocky Mountain National Park, which has Estes Park for its population and tourist center, to the United States Government.

The new road will be a standard 18-foot highway of moderate grade and will travel for ten miles above timber line and reach an altitude of 12,400 feet. It will be one of the three highest automobile roads on the continent, and will be the highest one located in a National Park.

Old Indian Route

Trail Ridge, a route used by the Indians long before white men entered the region, will be the general course of the new highway. It was known to the Araphoe Indians as "The Childs Trail," which distinguished it from "The Big Trail" which crossed Flattop Mountain, and "The Dog Trail," which followed the present course of the Fall River Road.

Those who have hiked over the proposed course of the new highway declare that it is far more scenic than the Fall River Road. The trail emerges from a dense forest to the wind-swept slopes above timber line. From here can be seen the Fall River valley and broad, level plains far to the east. The Continental Divide opens up a vista for many miles, with a splendid panorama of Terra Tomah Peak, Mount Julian, Stones Peak, Flattop Mountain, Glacier Gorge, and Long's Peak, the king of them all. On the west can be seen the foothills of middle Park, broad valleys and streams which are the beginning of the Colorado River.

Old River Road

The old Fall River Road may be preserved for scenic purposes, and probably will be used for horseback riding only.

Mechanical difficulties encountered in the old Fall River Road are declared by engineers to be insurmountable. Steep grades, sharp curves and cut-backs and narrow roadbeds are necessary because of the steepness of the north slope of the Fall River valley which the road ascends. Fame of the Fall River Road is largely due to the many sharp turns and sheer cliffs that drop thousands of feet to the bottom of the valley.

Construction of the new road will require several years, as ten miles of the road lies at such an altitude it will be inaccessible during the greater part of the year due to cold weather and heavy snow.

SENATE ST. MAN IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

Bound Over on Firearms Charge; Fined $250 for Liquor Violation

Willie Wright, 250 Senate st., was bound over to the grand jury on $300 bond by Judge William R. Martin yesterday on charges of pointing firearms. He waived examination after presentation of the state's evidence.

Wright was also fined $250 on charges of illegal possession of liquor filed in connection with his arrest on the other charge. Monday morning he entered pleas of not guilty to both charges, but yesterday afternoon changed his plea to guilty on the illegal possession charge.

He was arrested Saturday night on an affidavit filed by Benjamin Carter, residing in the rear of 239-43 Senate st., who charged Wrights snapped an automatic pistol at him twice when he denied an alleged debt. The third shot, aimed at the floor, exploded, Carter told police.

An electric meter has been invented to determine the amount of moisture in foundry sand.

Wallace Brencis Eaton, age 48, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Goldie Black, 720 Roma st. Mr. Eaton had been ill several weeks of influenza and pneumonia. Yesterday noon he was removed from his home, 450 Bartram st., in the W. C. Boyd ambulance to the home of his sister. He died about an hour later.

Mr. Eaton, who was employed as a section laborer on the Erie railroad, was born in Broadway, O., on March 31, 1881, the son of Isaac Franklin and Emiline Tarrington Eaton. He was married three times, his first two wives preceding him in death. He married Miss Lila Kinley in Marion on Aug. 30, 1924.

He was a member of the Cloverdale Spiritual church of Columbus.

He is survived by his widow, three children, Isaac and Oliver, at home, and Mrs. Nora Hart, of Kirkpatrick, four step-children Mrs. Edith Napier, of Urbana, Clyde Harrington, of Fairground st., and Mrs. Naomi Jones and Ray Jones, both of Columbus, one sister, Mrs. Goldie Black, at whose home he died, and one brother, Pearl Eaton, of Jefferson st.

ESSEX THE CHALLENGER

these important things

CHALLENGE TOO!

Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening

ESSEX challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their old cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives. Essex challenges:

IN SPEED—challenging anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN FAST GETAWAY—any car regardless of size or price. IN RELIABILITY—60 miles an hour for hour after hour. IN FINE APPEARANCE, upholstery and detail—compare with cars in which high price is paid for just those things. IN ECONOMY—compare with cars best known for low operation cost.

And with its superb chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex establishes also an outstanding leadership in proved VALUE. It offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. Check these items when you buy—they represent easily above $100 additional value. But they do not cost one cent extra.

The performance ability of Essex the Challenger is due in no small part to its Super-Six motor. Thus, while it is a "Six," no one who knows can regard any other "Six" as being comparable in the power it delivers.

Essex is built by Hudson under famous Super-Six patents. No one can copy or match it. The fundamental and exclusive Super-Six principle—developed in one million motors and over 12 years of continuous service, stamps Essex as the unapproached "Six" in every particular of performance, smoothness and reliability.

EASE OF BUYING

FOR INSTANCE, in this city your first payment, with your present car included, may be as low as $260, and your monthly payments $47.16.

Your present car will probably cover the entire first payment. The H. M. C. Purchase Plan offers the lowest terms available on the balance.

. . . EASE OF OWNING

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under continuous observation, averaged 20 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 22 miles and upward. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

Wide Choice of Colors at No Extra Cost

Standard Oil of Ohio Brings New Lubricant to Ohio Motorists

40° below zero temperature utilized to produce 100% Paraffin Base

OIL FREE FROM HARMFUL WAX

TODAY marks a step forward in Ohio motor lubrication. Today Petroleum's latest development is made available all over Ohio—the New Sohio Motor Oil.

We learned of a new refining process discovered by a distinguished petroleum technologist. Standard Oil of Ohio sought out this scientist. Now Ohio motorists are offered the results of this remarkable discovery—a 100% paraffin base lubricating oil free from harmful wax—New Sohio Motor Oil.

Petroleum's Stubborn Mystery Solved

The Petroleum industry has long recognized the necessity of producing an oil free from harmful wax. To obtain this complete separation of excess wax from oil it is necessary to chill the oil to a temperature never before believed possible. Our new process accomplishes this purpose.

By an ingenious device, oil is chilled to a temperature 40 degrees below zero.

At this degree of extreme cold centrifugal action is employed to remove the harmful wax content of the oil. The separation is complete. Countless tests in our own laboratories prove beyond the question of a doubt that this new process does produce an oil free from harmful wax.

ADVANCED NEW PROCESS REMOVES WAX AT 40° BELOW ZERO

Excess wax in motor oil causes trouble. Most manufacturers of good oils now de-wax by centrifugal action, employing the widely known principle of the farm cream separator. But the method used in the manufacture of Sohio Motor Oil performs this vital operation at the extreme temperature of 40° below zero, producing oil free from harmful wax. The results:

1. Little or no carbon.
2. Flexible viscosity—perfect motor lubrication at all temperatures.
3. Perfect piston seal—full power and least danger of oil dilution.

What wax-free oil means to your motor

It means a decided decrease in carbon formation. Excess wax is the basis of almost all carbon formation—the elimination of harmful wax in the New Sohio Motor Oil substantially decreases carbon formation. This is particularly important in high-compression motors because added carbon cuts down combustion space.

It means effective lubrication over wider temperature range. Wax doesn't allow flexibility. Regardless of the quick changes in temperature so common in Ohio, your motor will at all times receive normal lubrication with the New Sohio Motor Oil.

Drive up to any of the more than 700 Red-White-and-Blue Standard service stations today—or to any one of the hundreds of dealers displaying New Sohio Motor Oil banners. Ask to have your crankcase drained and refilled with New Sohio Motor Oil.

Check your car's operation—you'll find your motor running quieter and cooler, your carbon formation diminished and your oil lasting longer.

Try the New Sohio Motor Oil—then watch your thermometer and your speedometer for the most convincing story of its superiority.

Violent Wave of Stock Speculation Grips Financial District

MARKET IS STRAINED BY SUDDEN ADVANCES

Crack in Stocks Appears Certain After Short Bullish Period

LOAN RATE LOWER

Evidences of Profitable Industrial Operation Buying Stimulus

BY W. S. COUSINS
Financial Editor

New York, May 1—The stock market is in the grip of a violent wave of speculation. Prices shifted upward in response to the selling demand and showed little sign of the unusually severe liquidation of the financial giants and the withdrawal of money market funds for speculative purposes. Even on but with new stimulus for the buying side, the speculative account points on the up side of special issues developed the market was ready to attack under the selling orders which followed the brief rebound. During this period the unusual points were registered by the leaders of the list.

The market closed at a 5,000,000 share pace for the first two hours with the new specialties United Aircraft and Transportation leading the way with 10 points to 169 and Adams Express preferred advancing seven points. There were signs that the shorts were building up a new crop of stock to cover on the recent runups of stock by those that have shown nothing to sell during ability up to the [illegible] after the noon period [illegible] amusement subsidiary [illegible] Orpheum jumped into the limelight with a six point jump to the former 109 and a three-point move in the Keith Orpheum issue to 34. The bullish pools dangled the prospect of easy money before the eyes of the small traders, and once again the country-wide [illegible] of stock market speculation appeared to be in the making.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF MYSTERIOUS GRAIN

CHICAGO May 1—Wheat prices showed sharply a local buying and short covering in the first hour of trading yesterday to eleven with fair gains All session values had been confined to a narrow range as the clearing between May and deferred trades was carried on in preparation for today's delivery Corn prices were meager far from the previous day's close

Wheat receipts not price at Winnipeg fell 5¾@1 1 8 July 1 18 1 [illegible]@1 18 Sept 1 [illegible] Dec 1 0 1 1

Corn—May 80@80 1 4 July 0 1 4 @ 0 8 Sept 84 1 4@1 4 Dec 80 1 8 Sept [illegible]

Oats — May 46 @46 4 July 46 @ 8 Sept [illegible]

Aggressive buying of wheat credited to local professional account prompted short covering in the final hour and prices attained rapid rise in a market which appeared to hold shorts were persuaded over the firmness of the market a decline having been anticipated because of the expected heavy liquidation in May Sentiment however continued bearish despite the late bulge

Deliveries of at 1 [illegible] 000 000 to 3,000,000 bu of wheat I lay are generally liked for although some estimates called as high as 6,000,000 bu On the other hand the wide premium for July over May might tend to hold down the July deliveries

There was little news of the wheat situation and what little there was received seemed utterly in the adjustment to the which prices had Rain for the drought sections of the Northwest was forecast and frost was indicated for Kansas Cheap [illegible] was 1@2 cents higher at the close

Corn prices were generally firmer although there was no talk of too much rain in parts of the Southwest Private crop reports are to be given to the trade after the close of trading Thursday it was announced rather than today

Corn prices were shown, but little change from the previous close ranged a fraction over throughout the session Commission houses bought May and bought deferred mainly July while cash buyers transferred from hedges did the reverse Sales to wheat prospects for the initial deliveries today make up the bulk of the business First delivery are estimated at between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 bu

Planting of corn has started in some parts it was I Weather forecast was for [illegible] unsettled Little Consumer demand continued good and receipts and country offerings very light

In the cash market wheat was steady corn was ranged to 1c higher oats from barley steady and rye quiet

Deliveries of oats expected to total 100,000 to 200,000 bu while 600,000 to 1,000,000 bu of rye is expected to be tendered
